

LOUISVILLE'S GROWTH.

City's Population Now Placed at 222,000.

The new directory of Louisville published by the Carson Directory Company is completed and a few copies have made their appearance. The new volume contains 1,938 pages and, when the size of the city is taken into consideration, is a small and compact volume.

Miss Clara Aaron, who lives at 1959 Baxter avenue, has the distinction of being the person whose name appears first in the Louisville directory, and Joseph Zaver, of 626 Lampton street, is the last person whose name is given.

A comparison of the names in the directory alphabetically shows that the Smiths are in the lead as to numbers.

The name John Smith appears no less than 88 times, and to all of the Smiths fifteen pages of the book are devoted, which indicates that there between 1,500 and 2,000 Smiths in the city.

The Browns come next in point of numbers. There are 10 pages of Browns, while only seven pages are given exclusively to the Jones family.

The number of names used in the new directory is 110,954, and using 2, the figure based on the census as the proper multiplier, the population for January, 1903, is 221,908, an increase of 4,718 in the past year.—Post

A Woman's Words of Praise.

Neosho Falls, Kans., Nov. 13, '01. Peppin Syrup Co., Monticello, Ill.
Dear Sirs:—For almost fifteen years I suffered from indigestion, and last winter thought I would die, when my doctor, Dr. A. J. Licurance, of this place, advised me to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin, which I did, and two bottles cured me. It not only relieved me, but it cured me so that I have not been troubled since. If any one should offer me $500 for the good Syrup Peppin has done me, I would not think of taking it. No one can take your medicine without being convinced of its merit. I would like to tell you of it. I recommend it to all my friends as a laxative and stomach remedy. Yours gratefully, Miss J. Morgan.

Widows Numerous.

There is no town in Kentucky that has as large a per cent. of the population invested in widows as Harrodsburg. In that town there are 112 marriageable widows; or, in other words, fully one third of the population is composed of them. Most all of them are in good circumstances, and it might be to the interest of noble hearted bachelors of Jackson to make a quick in vestigating tour of that bluegrass city.—Jackson Hustler.

Changes in the Weather

Mean slight "spells" of Headache or affect your appetite. Irregularities in eating cause Dyspepsia. Take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin and feel good regardless of these elements or habits. Sold by C. W. Wily.

Company Must Pay.

Washington, March 6.—The city of Washington was given judgment against the Collier shovel company for $2,500, that being the amount of a bonus the city gave the company to locate and operate a factory here for ten years. After one year the factory was removed to Hammond, Ind., and the company refused to refund the money.

Horseless carriages, trolley engines and the wireless telegraph are the greatest innovations. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin is next and cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Stomach Troubles. Sold by C. K. Wily.

Woman Nail Carrier.

Bowling Green, March 6.—Miss Mattie L. Thompson was sworn in as a substitute for her father, J. H. Thompson, who is a regular carrier on rural free delivery route No. 2. Mr. Thompson is not in good health.

FRENCH FURNITURE.

Attempt to Restore or Replace the Beauties of Old Types.

An enterprising proprietor of one of those enormous "universal" houses, in Paris, from which Zola drew his "Boulevard des Dames," has offered a prize for such designs in furniture and house decoration as shall best typify and reflect the civilization of the third republic. His astute proposal has drawn attention not only to the importance of his own establishment, but to what he no doubt considers the secondary question of whether such designs are possible at all, and what the "Style Troisième République" may fairly be considered to be. There is, of course, no shadow of doubt that the cafes of Montmartre and the studios of the Quartier latin have long ago composed their answers to a challenge so seductively held out. They will create a style as light-heartedly as they will destroy a government, and with just a little consultation about the ultimate verities involved.

In reality, says the London Telegraph, our enterprising bar keeper of Montmartre is not so original as may be imagined. For some years a perfect contagion of eccentricity has raged across the continent, under the name of "L'Art Nouveau." They year just closed has seen several exhibitions inspired by the same repugnance of everything traditional. In Vienna, in Berlin and in Munich have been called "secession" galleries have been filled with skillful non-traditions. At Turin the same tendency was everywhere observable. Artists have wandered off in debaucheries of meaningless decoration; jewellers have twisted gold and enamel and precious stones into the newest deformities of an extravagant imprudence.

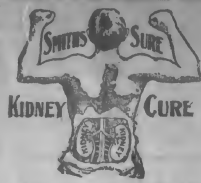

For many years France was the center of the artistic light in Europe. In many ways it is still so. But a death blow was dealt to more than that one monarchy by the events of 1789. Throughout the eighteenth century French art, fostered by the centralizing influence of the "grand monarque," gradually increased in the verbal power of its expression. At the death of Louis XIV. two styles, associated with the names of his immediate successors, were logically and beautifully developed, which have been the joy of collectors ever since. They inherited the rich harvest of the sixteenth century of a renaissance which took its whole departure from the central principle of the rehabilitation of the individual. Temple were forgotten, for houses had to be built. Artists turned from monumental to the production and decoration of objects in which the personal motive was predominant. The elegant called into harmonious service all the larger arts; furniture became the epitome of all the lesser. On such foundations worked the men who made eighteenth century furniture from France, whose names were Jean Lamour, Caffieri, Boulle, Charles Cressent, Riesener, Gouthiere, whose collaborations were Watteau, Fragonard, Boucher, Natoire, Van Loo, Buet, Van Sappendorp. You may see as fine specimens of the work as exist anywhere in the Jones collection at the South Kensington museum or in the Wallace collection at Hertford house. Everywhere reigns good breeding. Not a trick of fashionable coquetry is lost, or of that "sweet disorder in the dress, kindling in clothes a wantonness," which is as far from goodness as it is different from modesty. The artist had an exquisite tact. A happy license, an attractive fancy in those days when convention had a greater influence on life and conduct than it ever had before or since. "Better die than be ugly" was their motto, and in it is all the charm of a gallant, careless, aristocratic age that has passed away forever. It bloomed the fairer because it was on the verge of an abyss. The guillotine cut off at a stroke the old traditions of spacious luxury for which the exquisite furniture of Louis XV. and XVI. has been created.

Red Color in Battle.

The number of soldiers slain in battle depends a great deal on the color of their uniform. The more conspicuous the helmet and jacket the better the target, and consequently the greater the loss. Red attracts the eye most readily, and is worn in red, green, or blue or gray. In either brown, blue-gray or gray.

HOW A FASHION ORIGINATED.

Story of the 4,000,000 Squirrel Skins American Women Are Wearing.

A government found itself with tens of millions of soft, gray squirrel skins on its hands. These it could not get rid of.

One day, says the New York World, a famous dressmaker of Paris heard of these skins and a brilliant idea came to him. "I will make a market for your skins," he said to have told the government, "if you will make it worth my while."

Now the government—which is that of Russia, for this is a true story—was very anxious to turn its vast stock of skins into currency, and an agreement, they say, was made with the Paris dressmaker.

That is how the squirrel-skin coat fashion is said to have started and why a certain maker of coats for the aristocracy of the French capital has developed much wealth in the past few months.

The only gray squirrel skins in the world that are soft enough and fine enough to make beautiful garments are those of Russia. Only Russian skins are used in the garments seen in New York.

These skins pass as currency in Siberia, and the peasants often pay their taxes in them, the government having accepted them from time immemorial. In consequence vast stores of the skins are in the possession of the government. As they produce no income, the officials are constantly seeking some means of disposing of them.

The fashionable dressmaker found his work easy. He made up some beautiful coats of the skins and induced a number of his leading patrons to buy and wear them. Immediate success followed. The new coats caught the fashionable fancy, and the dressmaker was swamped with orders for the garments.

In an astonishingly short time the fashion had spread to London, Berlin and New York and thence throughout the civilized world. The Paris dressmaker reaped a double reward—from the introduction of the fashion and the sale of the coats.

As many as 5,000 skins are used in a single garment, but a very short coat may be made of 150, and 300 is generally used. There are from 15 to 30 days' work for one man in a garment.

The Siberian squirrel looks like the American squirrel. A cheerful, active, bustling animal, it increases with great rapidity and is trapped with ease. The most common sort of trap is made of the fork of a hollow tree. Here a store of nuts is set and the section of wood upon which the squirrel must stand to reach the nuts is set on a kind of pivot, so that the squirrel's weight causes the bottom, so to speak, to fall out of the tree fork, and the animal is suddenly dropped down through the hollow trunk into a little chamber under the soil. Immediately, then, the pivoted section of the wood springs back into place again and the trap is set for another victim.

The darkest, handsomest and most expensive Siberian squirrels are found in the Samarcanda district, near the Arctic circle. They are very scarce. A blouse of them—a blouse reaching only to the waist—costs $350. A coat—reaching a little below the hips—costs about $350. An automobile coat, coming to the knees, costs $500. The next best quality of skins come from the Talutsk district, and the next from the Yenisei district. The cheapest skins (a light color, tinged with red) come from Tobolsk and Kazan.

Squirrel skins are all dressed in one place—in Weissenfels, a town that produces a chemical clay and salt to be found nowhere else. This clay alone will cure the skins in a proper manner. Twenty firms there are engaged in this business. America imported last year only 20,000 squirrel skins. These skins cost on an average 12 cents apiece. This year America has imported, up to the present time, 4,000,000 squirrel skins. They cost, on the average, 35 cents apiece.

Clay "Butter."

It is not generally known that in many parts of the world clay is eaten on bread as a substitute for butter. This is termed "stone butter," and is used in Germany. In the northern parts of Sweden earth is often baked in bread and is sold in the public markets on the Italian peninsula, as well as on the island of Sardinia, Persia, Nubia and other tropical countries. This practice probably had its origin in the knowledge that all earths have some sort of flavor, and take the place of salt, a necessary ingredient in all kinds of food.

LITTLE WOMEN.

Nature dates womanhood from the period when the womanly function is first established, so that nature's little women are school-girls, shop-girls, etc. And therein lies a danger. This period is one of the most important in a woman's life, the mental effort of study, the physical effort of labor, are doubly exhausting at this season, and coupled with neglect or ignorance are often responsible for irregularity and other womanly ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription may be relied upon to carry the woman safely through this period, as it does through maternity and the later change of life. This great medicine establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Two years ago my daughter's health began to fail," writes Mrs. Dan Hall, of Woodbury, Green Co., Wis. "Everything that could be thought of was done to help her, but it was of no use. She kept failing and I gave up, thinking she must die. I must say, Doctor, that only for your 'Favorite Prescription' my daughter would have been in her grave today. When she had taken one-half bottle the natural function was established, and we bought another one, making only two bottles in all, and she is completely recovered. Since then she is as well as can be."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold FREE on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover the cost of mailing. ONLY. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:

"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

DAVID J. HOOSER,

Aged Citizen, Succumbs to Second Stroke of Paralysis.

Mr. David J. Hooser, one of the oldest citizens of Christian county, died about six o'clock last Friday morning at his home in this city, of paralysis. He suffered a stroke last December, from which he partially recovered. On March 1 he received a second stroke and remained in a semi-unconscious condition until the end came.

Mr. Hooser was in his 91st year and was a native of Todd county. In early life he learned the tinners' trade in Clarksville and became a citizen of Hopkinsville about sixty years ago. For many years he was a member of the firm of Hooser & Overhiner, and later he and Mr. H. C. Ballard were engaged in business together. He was a member of the Odd Fellows' Lodge and a life-long member of the Methodist church.

Mr. Hooser was twice married. His first wife died many years ago. He is survived by a widow and the following children: Mrs. Annie Savage, Mrs. J. B. Girard, Misses Wila and Julia Hooser, Mrs. J. E. Moser and Mrs. Barbara Griffith. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church Saturday morning, conducted by Revs. E. L. Southgate and Francis Lee Goff, and the interment took place in Hopewell Cemetery, the Odd Fellows officiating with impressive ceremonies.

TWO GOOD PAPERS

Read at the Athenaeum Meeting Thursday Night.

The Athenaeum met Thursday night with 18 members present and held a most delightful meeting. There were three papers, but Col. Jouett Henry was kept away by a social engagement and his paper was continued until the next meeting.

Mr. Geo. E. Gary had a very thoughtful and carefully prepared philosophical paper on "Truth and its Correlatives." While the subject matter was very profound, the diction was elegant and a vein of humor ran through the paper that made it a most interesting one from start to finish. The last two lines of his epilogue were:

"It be here who se'er said lie,
He may the primal stone be fit."

The editor of THE KENTUCKIAN was the first man to accept the challenge.

Mr. Gordon Nelson next read a paper on "Tobacco," with which his business has made him very familiar. It covered the weed in its various stages and the present methods of controlling the tobacco market provoked a general discussion. A wide range of opinion was developed and the discussion proved to be one of much interest. Mr. Nelson's paper was a well written one and showed a thoughtful consideration of a timely and appropriate topic.

The next members on the program will be Prof. A. C. Kuykendall, Col. Jouett Henry and Rev. W. L. Nourse.
